DESCRIPTION

Orienteering is a team-building activity usually held in Góis, Lousã, or Talasnal (Schist Village), but can be organized anywhere in Portugal. Our team travels to the site, prepares the game, and provides all necessary materials, including maps and technical support during the activity.

The game works on a points system: Participants are divided into teams, each receiving a map and a compass. Before the start, our team explain how to read a military map and use the compass correctly. Several points are marked on the map, corresponding to the markers scattered across the terrain, where teams must punch their control cards. Each marker has a different score, forcing teams to define a strategy: choosing which points to visit, managing the available time, and, in some cases, splitting up to maximize the final score. The more goals that are reached, the higher the score, but success always depends on team decision-making and the time it takes (there are point penalties if the time limit is exceeded).

It is a competitive activity, ideal for a morning or afternoon, without great physical demands, combining strategy, communication and fun. It is especially suitable for groups that want to reward the winning team, reinforcing team spirit, cooperation and competition.

What to bring?

Bring water. Clothing and footwear appropriate to the weather conditions of each season are recommended, prioritizing lightweight, thermal and breathable clothing, waterproof or windproof clothing, comfortable sneakers, a hat for sun protection, and trousers that allow good mobility.
